Allerød, Denmark – 19 March 2019:

For the first time, Better Moments offers a photography workshop in Northern Africa, namely Morocco. The company has teamed up with National Geographic staff photographer Sisse Brimberg, who has photographed over 50 stories for the magazine and who also leads common workshops in Bhutan, Svalbard, Tibet and Nepal - some of the most desirable regions to visit today for photographers and film makers. Hosting a workshop in colorful and vibrant Morocco has been a goal for both parties for a while as the country has a lot to offer in terms of travel and street photography,

"Morocco is one of the richest places to photograph. I don't know of any other place that has the variety of environments to test out and improve your photography skills and capture photographic moments – the Atlas Mountains, the cities, the desert – the opportunities are endless. It's just phenomenal.", says Sisse Brimberg.

Better Moments sets high value on combining hands-on lessons with theoretical lectures, where the professional photographers share their knowledge and give advice on how to improve one's pictures. During the Morocco workshop, Sisse

Brimberg wants to emphasize how a camera can be used as a tool for storytelling, however, there will also be lectures about how to approach strangers and the secrets of travel and street photography.

Workshop leader Sisse Brimberg is particularly looking forward to explore the bustling souks Morocco is famous for,

“As a photographer, I personally love finding just the right moment to photograph people in the souk as they constantly and quickly pass in front of my lens. With its ever-changing light and movement, the souk is a challenging and exciting place to work. When it all comes together, it is extremely rewarding to be capable of making an image that opens the door to Moroccan life”, Brimberg says.

The 9-day workshop will take place from 13-21 October 2019 and the group will visit Casablanca, Rabat, Meknes, Fes, the Atlas Mountains, Agafay Desert and Marrakesh.

Better Moments was founded in 2011 by Christian Nørgaard and Philip Boissevain, two experienced veterans of the international professional photography industry. By now, Better Moments has become a leading photo workshop platform organizing high-end workshops for passionate photo enthusiasts worldwide as well as private PhotoWalks in major cities like Paris, Berlin and Copenhagen. The workshops create unique opportunities for our guests to learn from the world's best photographers within their fields, such as Steve McCurry, Michael Nichols or Sisse Brimberg as well as working with high-end equipment from partners like Phase One, Hasselblad or Zeiss.
